

Respect and Dignity for Each Human Being

I have heard many times that give respect and have respect, so this has created a mindset that if you are receiving respect then we should give respect or if we are getting respect, we should expect the same behavior and treatment for others. But that is not the reality of the world.

I have finally understood that I have to give respect to everyone on my behalf without expecting the same behavior from other maybe he or she will treat you, aggressively or rudely but I should not lose my patience with them.

As far as diversity is concerned, it is not just the difference of race, religion etc. but is also difference of mindset and the acceptance of the fact that I am not the only one to think perfectly. I must also listen and encourage the opinion and mentality of other people as well.

I see myself as a Celebrator of Diversity. We are living in a Muslim Country and I should celebrate and supportive for the minority or the person having different religions, to make them feel comfortable.

We celebrated Diwali with our Hindu Friend in our hostel on month ago, because none of his family members were with him, so we all tried to be there for him.
